The idea of the Forum was first mooted by the EuroIndia Centre, in partnership with Confederation of Indian Industry (CII), in 2006 with the active support of the Hon'ble Prime Minister of India, Dr. Manmohan Singh.

Since then the Forum has gained tremendous momentum and emerged as a powerful platform to promote city-to-city bilateral cooperation between India & Europe. The overall objective of the Forum is to facilitate exchange of ideas, expertise, technology, investment and build over all cooperation between India and Europe to make cities centre of excellence and engine of economic growth on a sustainable basis.

This year EuroIndia Forum in Goa was jointly inaugurated by Dr. Harjit S Anand, Secretary, Ministry of Housing and Poverty Alleviation, Mr. M Ramachandran, Secretary, Ministry of Urban Development and Mr. Ronald Hall, Director of International Relations, European Commission, Brussels and addressed by several prominent personalities from both sides, including the Lord Mayor of Halle, Germany, the Mayor of Valladolid, Spain, the Deputy Mayor of La Rochelle, France, the Municipal Commissioner of Indore and the Mayor and Municipal Commissioner of Ahmedabad.

Mr. M Ramachandran, Secretary, Ministry of Urban Development, in his address, emphasized on empowering cities to function more effectively & efficiently. Cities have ideas and development plans, the need of the hour is to build capacity to convert these ideas into concrete projects, he added.

He further pointed out that funds allocated by the Government alone would not be able to meet the growing demands of urban infrastructure. Increasingly cities will have to find alternative sources of investments. With credit rating, the cities are better equipped today to rope in the private sector and garner resources from other avenues.

Dr. Harjit S Anand, Secretary, Ministry of Urban Housing &

Poverty Alleviation opined that Indian and European cities have enormous scope to join hands in specific areas such as City & Regional Planning, Architecture, Social Cohesiveness, Tourism, Education, R&D and Technology.

While the contribution of cities to the GDP has grown progressively from 45% a decade and half ago to 62% now, how to mainstream deprived sections of the society continue to pose a challenge, Dr. Anand pointed out.

Shortage of housing is another huge challenge for Indian cities. More than 50% of the population is expected to reside in cities in India by 2040. Under JNNURM approx. 1 million units are under construction, he informed.

Concluding his address, Dr. Anand cited Chandigarh as the finest example of cooperation between Europe and India. Chandigarh was designed by the French Architect Le Corbusier, who once said "space, light and order are thing that men need as much as they need bread and place to sleep". Indian cities are committed to create space, light and order and European cities could be a strong partner, he said.

Mr. Ronald Hall, Director of International Relations, European Commission, Brussels presented the 4 pronged Urban Agenda of EU. The objective is to promote cities as motors of regional development, foster internal cohesion inside urban areas by concentrating on deprived urban districts, polycentric development, improve in the interface between urban and rural areas.

For the year 2007-13, the EU has earmarked 350 billion Euros for development strategies for cities and the region. 80% of the funds will be spent on the least developed regions. Historically EU has followed the principle of decentralized implementation. States, regions and city authorities decide on projects whereas EU injects a sense of priority through its Community Initiative Capital programme. The main objective is to promote an integrated approach, he further elaborated.

Emphasizing on the importance of exchange of ideas and cross-learning, he informed that the EU has set up Urban Network known as URBACT – an exchange network for cities to learn from each others experiences and best practices. URBACT also encourages city managers to engage in benchmarking. It has developed profiles of cities and has 330 indicators in 9 domains such as demography, social & education, transport, etc. The EU is also actively encouraging non grant sources of finance; promoting an urban development fund for sustainable investment in cities.

Reflecting on the international dimension, Mr. Roland said that EU has developed ties with China, Brazil and Russia to exchange experiences on policies of redistribution at the urban level and was ready to look at India.
